Rebate Checklist for Ontario Homeowners

What to ask before you count a rebate toward your budget

Before you call a contractor

1. Find the program's own page
   Search for the official page for any rebate a contractor mentions and read what it currently says, since terms change.
2. Check who is eligible
   Some programs are limited to certain utility customers or income bands. Confirm before you count on a number.
3. Ask about assessments
   Some programs call for a home energy assessment before or after the work. Ask whether that applies to your project.

Questions to ask your contractor

1. Is this rebate still open
   Ask them to show you the program's current status rather than a number from an older sales sheet.
2. Who submits the paperwork
   Find out whether the contractor applies on your behalf or you do, and get that in writing.
3. What happens if the program closes mid project
   Ask what your options are if funding runs out or eligibility rules shift before your installation is complete.

What to keep for your records

1. Save your quotes and invoices
   Rebate applications typically ask for itemized paperwork, so keep everything from the first estimate onward.
2. Note the assessment dates
   If a program calls for a before and after assessment, keep both reports together with your other documents.

Confirm current rebate details with the program directly, then reach out to Just Air HVAC to plan the work around them.
